What To Do In The Event Of A Complication or Emergency After Your Plastic Surgery Procedure

Please contact your surgeon or the on-call physician immediately if you notice any of the following:

- Excessive bleeding from your incision areas
- Pus, a cloudy discharge, or a foul odor emanating from your incision areas or elsewhere
- Uncontrollable pain
- Blisters or implant extrusion
- Bottoming out, Displacement or Implant Deflation
- Temperature over 101° F
- Inability to pass waste (both liquid and solid)
- Numbness of the extremities
- Uncontrollable dizziness

Please contact your surgeon or the on-call physician AND go to the emergency room as soon as possible if you notice any of the following:

- Passing blood through urine, feces or spitting up blood
- Abrupt and severe swelling and discoloration (aside from normal swelling)
- Blackening of the skin (which is clearly NOT a bruise)
- Uncontrollable Vomiting or Convulsions
- Loss of consciousness not related to sedatives
- Temperature over 105° F
- Severe chest pain, difficulty breathing

What to do in case of a complication:

- STAY CALM
- Have your emergency numbers handy and contact (or have your caretaker contact) your surgeon
- If you are going to the emergency room don't forget to tell your surgeon WHICH hospital
- Bring all of your medications with you to the hospital
- It may be cautionary to pack an overnight bag ahead of time just in case, and also have your insurance card, state ID and blood type handy with this sheet in case you must go to the E.R.
- If you are able, document your symptoms and complaints, and take photos if you can
